

Fatwa Hunted: A Chilling True Story of Freedom of Speech, Religious Extremism, and the American Dream

By Pamela Geller

In the heart of New York City, a woman named Pamela Geller found herself at the center of a chilling international firestorm. After organizing a controversial exhibit of cartoons depicting the Prophet Muhammad, she became the target of a fatwa—a death sentence issued by an Iranian religious leader. Geller's life was turned upside down as she faced threats, harassment, and even an attempt on her life.

In this gripping memoir, Geller takes readers on a harrowing journey through the dark underbelly of religious extremism and the challenges of defending freedom of speech in America. She recounts the events that led to the fatwa, the threats she faced, and the courageous stand she took against those who sought to silence her.
