The Owens family has been cursed for generations. Every woman born into the family is destined to love unwisely, to suffer heartbreak, and to die young. But Sarah, Gillian, and Franny Owens are determined to break the curse.

Born in the 1600s, Sarah is a powerful witch who longs for a life free from the expectations of her family. Gillian is a practical woman who tries to ignore her magical heritage, but she can't escape her fate. Franny is a young woman who is just discovering her powers, and she is determined to use them for good.

As the three sisters navigate the challenges of love, loss, and family, they must also confront the dark forces that have plagued their family for generations. Can they break the curse and find happiness? Or will they be doomed to repeat the mistakes of their ancestors?

Alice Hoffman is the author of more than 30 novels, including Practical Magic, The Dovekeepers, and The Rules of Magic. She has also written short stories, children's books, and plays.
